your country best and is much more easily harvested.

Save your broom corn fodder as it makes good roughness, also the seed ground with kaffir or maize makes good feed.

Broom corn will grow any where that cane or kaffir will make a crop.

I want to commend your editor for pledging himself to help advertise and sell an order for dwarf seed bought by Reynolds & Co. for spring seeding, also the Commercial Club for their words of encouragement.

I will close by saying that it will surely pay to plant broom corn in this country.

Please bear in mind S P Robbins & Co carry all lines of Insurance and has a string of companies that can't be beat. 23 24

Sugar Beet Culture

Texhoma, Okla., Dec. 13—Sugar beets raised at Dalhart during the last few years have averaged testing 22.5 per cent saccharine, which makes nearly one-fourth pure sugar. The average in the beet section where the factories are operating runs from 12 to 17.5 per cent saccharine. Recent demonstrations at various places on the North Plains have shown that twelve or more tons of beets can be grown to the acre. The day is no doubt coming when the Panhandle will be recognized as part of the sugar beet producing section of the United States. —Dallas News.

Sure the time is coming when the Panhandle will be recognized as part of the sugar beet growing section of the United States, and not only that, but the time is near when she will be recognized as the leading agricultural part of the United States, she is without a doubt a winner. Come to the country where you can grow any old thing you wish to plant the country where your health will be good, the country that has a future as bright as a new silver dollar. Yes Lubbock is situated in the midst of some of the best and most fertile farming countries that can be found.

The Winter Meat Seller

We believe that the farmer or ranchman should have the liberty of selling anything he raises anywhere he pleases for the highest price he can get.

We believe that Midland people should give those who have raised produce in the country the preference when they buy, and that our merchants should handle as much as possible home grown products. Chickens, eggs, butter, vegetables, feedstuff—any and everything should and generally does find a ready market here and at good prices. We mention these things because we do not want to be misunderstood.

The patronizing of the winter meat wagon does our meat market men a grave injustice. Please understand us. We do not have in mind that farmer or ranchman who occasionally kills a beef and "peddles out" what he cannot use. We have reference to the fellow who allows the markets to furnish fresh meats, during the hot months, when much ice is necessary to keep the meats, and when there is little or no profit to be derived from the business. But when "sweet summer" is gone and "the frost is on the pumpkin" etc., we behold the "winter peddler" abroad in the land with his wagon, butcher knife, hatchet and handsaw ready to whack off any size hunk of beef that you call for, while the "poor" market man who kept your steak on ice for you when the mercury hovered around 90 in the shade, gnashes his teeth and wishes that he might have the chance to swat you in the left ear with a hog kidney.

Now the Examiner man will accept any kind of meat, tame or wild, and ask no questions if it's a treat, but he will not spend his money with the man who only has his market on wheels three months of the year, being in the newspaper business, we do not eat much Porter House, but we occasionally treat Mrs. Examiner and the children to a nickels worth of liver, and we buy it from the market man who, like the poor, is always with us, and who promptly sends us that piece of liver in August as well as December. —Midland Examiner
